
PRIVACY POLICY

Introduction and Summary

PIVOT Integrative Consulting, LLC wants to make it easy for you to understand what information we collect from you, what we do with it, and how you can request access to this information.

We believe this is a best practice to maintain transparency and trust with our website visitors and clients and remain in compliance with the law. If you have questions about this policy, you can contact us at info@pivotintegrativeconsulting.com.

We collect as little information from you as possible for a specific and identifiable purpose, and then we commit to using this information only in the way we have specified. When you visit this site, you are agreeing to this Privacy Policy, the collection of information identified in this policy, and you always have the ability to opt out.

What Personal Information We Collect and When

We collect information so we can make our products and services better tailored to the people who visit our site and do business with us. We collect this information to (1) deliver products and services you have purchased from us, (2) to notify you about our product or service offerings you may be interested in, so long as you have given us consent to do so, (3) to keep track of visitor information to our site and/or create retargeted and “lookalike” audiences for advertising purposes.

We collect information from you directly and indirectly through third party services as follows:

When you contact us...

- With questions or comments in the contact form.
- When you comment on a post directly on the website.
- To request more information or schedule a telephone call
- To place an order for products or services.
- To receive your products or services.

When we contact you...

- We may see certain personal information from third party apps and services that allow us to complete your order.
- We may see certain personal information from third party installations that allow us to remarket our services and products to you on other websites.

- We may see certain personal information from third party apps and services that allow us to monitor website traffic, email conversion, and other analytics data.
- We may see your personal information when we work with third party processors, like our email provider and web host. For EU residents, please note that this means we may transmit your data across international borders.

Your Privacy Controls

We use third-party services on our websites to assist in communicating or interacting with the public including social media services, widgets, apps, pixels, and plugins, as further identified below. These services may distinguish or trace your identity, through, for example, persistent, multi-session cookies.

You can configure your system to delete or disable cookies. In general, we do not collect or disseminate information collected by these services. When interacting with these third-parties, their privacy policies apply. As of the time of this writing, we use:

- Facebook pixels. More information is available here and here.
- Stripe. More information is available here.
- Wix. More information is available here.

Cookies are small text files placed on your computer to collect information about the pages you view and your activities on the site. They enable the site to recognize you by, for example, remembering your username, offering a shopping cart, or keeping track of your preferences if you visit the site again. The cookie transmits this information back to the website's computer (or server) which generally is the only computer that can read it. You can set your Web browser to warn you about attempts to place cookies on your computer, or to limit the type of cookies you allow.

- This site uses single and multi-session cookies to enhance the visitor experience. Use the links above to opt out. This site does not sell or share its email list for use by third parties.
- If you choose to opt out of some or all of our data collection, you may not be able to access all features of this website or our services.

Keeping Your Information Secure

We store personal information with third parties that use industry standard practices for data security.

Your Rights to Your Information

You own your personal information and have rights to it. For example, you have the rights to:

- Withdraw your consent for us to market our products and services to you and otherwise use the personal information you have provided to us. Withdrawing consent is easy. Simply click “unsubscribe” in the footer of our emails, or contact us at info@pivotintegrativeconsulting.com.

- Request a copy of the information we have about you;
- Be forgotten (that is, have your data deleted and/or ask us to stop using your information for any purpose);
- Correct inaccurate information we have about you (and that means we will notify other service providers we use, and who hold your personal information for us, of those changes as well);
- Object to direct marketing and profiling (for example, we will remove you from our email list and from any list we have uploaded for the purposes of creating custom or retargeted audiences). We also encourage you to disable data collection services on your browser;
- Make complaints about the use of your data to regulatory authorities.

We will comply with these requests within 30 days.

Compliance

We make commercially reasonable efforts to work with data controllers (like our email provider) who guarantee compliance with privacy laws like the European Union's General Data Protection Regulation.

We store your personal information only for as long as it is needed to use it for the reasons you have consented to.

Occasionally we will revise this policy and will use your contact information to notify you of these changes if they reduce your privacy rights in any way.

Our data protection officer is Dr. Amy Knaperek.

Updated July 2022.